Point of Order

The Member's question appears to seek an opinion, including a legal opinion or interpretation. It contains argument and is not concise, all of which is in breach of Standing Order 105.

The President ruled as follows —

14. Abortion Legislation Reform Bill 2023

Debate resumed on the second reading of this Bill (see item 12 above).

Interruption pursuant to order.

15. President's Ruling — Question without Notice

The President ruled as follows —

During today's Questions without Notice a point of order was raised by the Parliamentary Secretary representing the Minister for Industrial Relations in relation to a question asked by Hon Ben Dawkins regarding the Workers Compensation and Injury Management Bill 2023.

The question sought the Minister's response to matters contained in a legal opinion dated 16 June 2023 from the Australian Lawyers Alliance, which the Member tabled at the time of asking the question. The legal opinion considered aspects of the Bill.

The Parliamentary Secretary has objected to the question on the basis that:

- (a) it seeks an opinion, including a legal interpretation or opinion (Standing Order 105(1)(b)); and
- (b) it is not concise (Standing Order 105(1)(a)); and
- (c) it contains argument.

The third objection is not a ground of objection under the Standing Orders and so that particular objection is not sustained. The first two objections are upheld due to the length of the question and the fact that that the question expressly asks the Minister to respond to conclusions reached in a legal opinion. I therefore rule the question out of order.

I also make the observation that the question relates to a Bill that is currently before this House, and that the Member can avail himself of the committee stage of that Bill to further explore aspects of the matter that he seeks information on.
