Mr P. Papalia replied:

Department of Education

No.

The answer represents the business units operating within the central and regional education offices of the Department of Education. However, schools may operate online uniform shops or use externally provided ticketing services for events (e.g. trybooking). Schools would need to be contacted individually to gather more information in response to the question asked. This has not been undertaken due to school holidays and the time it would take to collect and collate the information.
