3727. Hon Robin Chapple to the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs:

I refer to the media report released by ABC Journalist, Sarah Dingle on Sunday, 6 September 2015, WA's stolen wages shame, and ask:

- (a) did the Government commission financial modelling by Barton Consulting to determine actuary sums of how much the State of Western Australia owes its Aboriginal workers;
- (b) what were the calculations of the amount of Commonwealth benefits stolen from Aboriginal people en masse under a State Government system;
- (c) was a taskforce set up to provide final recommendations to the Government in 2008 regarding the stolen wages reparation scheme;
- (d) if yes to (c), who were the members, how were they appointed and what was the terms of appointment;
- (e) will the Minister table the taskforce's final recommendations;
- (f) if no to (e), why not;
- (g) was the taskforce's final recommendations to Government in 2008, regarding the stolen wages reparation scheme said to cost $71 million, with up to 3,000 workers thought to be still alive who could make a claim;
- (h) did the Department of Treasury agree that individual payouts would be as high as $78,000 for those workers identified in (g);
- (i) did monies stolen by pastoralists, churches and private individuals as stolen wages contribute to the stolen generation as families did not have money to care for their children;
- (j) why was there a four year delay in the Government progressing recommendations by the taskforce;
- (k) would the Minister agree that there has been a direct failure of duty of the Government to protect Aboriginal people since under the Act, and up until 1972, Aboriginal people were under the direct supervision of the Commissioner;
- (l) although the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs claimed "you simply cannot put a figure on the stolen wages which would have rigour and accuracy", how did the Minister and/or the department then calculate and provide a figure of a maximum payout of

$2,000 each, even though there was detailed actuary modelling commissioned by the Australian Government;

- (m) will the Minister table the documents provided by Barton Consulting;
- (n) if no to (m), why not;
- (o) although the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs previously claimed that “unfortunately, due to the complexity of trust accounts in Western Australia, the significant lack of surviving records and the passage of time, the taskforce could not develop an actuarial model that could illuminate the true value or full impact of any compensation”, does the Minister now agree that he and/or his department has, and always has had, enough evidence that proves people were owed more than $2,000;
- (p) if no to (o), why not; and
- (q) based on the documents provided by Barton Consulting, will the Minister undertake action to provide proper compensation to those impacted by stolen wages?
